

5 Days of Lessons to Teach Students to Write Using Prepositions for 3rd Grade

Scroll to take a peek inside!

SOUND FAMILIAR?

- ✓ Your students moan and groan when it's grammar time.
- ✓ Getting them to use proper grammar in their writing is like pulling teeth.
- ✓ Demonstrating good grammar is difficult because you're not sure what to use.

I've been there.

I USED TO HATE TEACHING GRAMMAR.
BUT WHEN I CHANGED
FROM TEACHING
GRAMMAR IN ISOLATION, MY
STUDENTS' WRITING
WAS IMPROVED SO MUCH!

Project Slide #11: I CAN STATEMENT

- Review the lesson's I Can Statement by reading it aloud.

Project Slide #12: REVISING CHECKLIST

- Copy and distribute the Revising and Editing Checklist to each student.
- Explain that today students will revise and edit their writing for the targeted grammar skill.
- Read aloud the items on the revising checklist.
- Model how to complete the revising checklist.
- Ask students to revise their own written piece using the revising checklist. Confer with students while they are revising.
- Invite a few students to share revisions they made.

Project Slide #13: EDITING CHECKLIST

- Read aloud the items on the editing checklist.
- With the same written piece, model how to use the editing checklist. Teach any editing marks that may apply.
- Ask students to edit their own written piece using the editing checklist. Confer with students while they are editing.
- Invite a few students to share edits they made.
- Discuss how their writing is enhanced after revising and editing.

Project Slide #14: ASSESSMENT

- Copy and distribute the Assessment and Assessment Rubric pages to each student.
- Read aloud the directions on the pages.
- Allow 15-20 minutes for students to complete their assessments (optionally also have them grade their own writing with the rubric).
- Collect assessments and grade them with the rubric. Record your grade for each student.
